My Home Move announces new integration with leading technology platform

My Home Move, one of the largest providers of conveyancing services in England and Wales, today announces its integration with yet another leading industry platform, the mortgage sourcing system Trigold.

This latest move is part of the company's continued commitment to ensuring that the conveyancing process is as simple and accurate as possible for all involved. My Home Move already has links with well known estate agency platform Vebra, which has allowed it to offer agents an even more efficient and streamlined service.

As an experienced volume provider, My Home Move uses its advanced processes to achieve particularly fast turnaround times. A typical conveyancing case, for example, is completed 25 days quicker than the industry average.

My Home Move sales and marketing director Stephen Hayter commented:

“Our philosophy has always been to make the conveyancing process as fast and efficient as possible and technology plays a big part in this. By integrating with leading industry platforms we are able to provide a further enhanced service.

“While we are heavily focused on the use of advanced technology, we firmly believe that it should be used to support superior customer service and should not be a substitute. It's this balance that allows us to successfully manage high numbers of queries while maintaining a friendly and approachable feel.”
