My Home Move moves home

My Home Move, the largest independent provider of conveyancing services in England and Wales, has moved offices to new, larger premises in Grove Park, Enderby, Leicester. The company has grown from only having 35 employees to over 250 since it first started in 2002.

The move comes as My Home Move is trying to expand its market share. Currently the company has just 1% of the conveyancing market share in the country and firmly believes there is a lot of room to grow.

Stephen Hayter, director, My Home Move, explains: "We need to be in a place where we have the room to operate effectively and the room to expand still further. For instance, the post room is the hub of our building as we are a nearly completely paperless office. So the post room is where the process starts and it's now five times bigger than it used to be. We bring in 8 boxes and 3 bags of post in every day and where once we only had one scanner and 2 people, we now have room to have 12 people and two scanners to scan in all the documents that come in and ensure they are on the computer to be processed by our staff. This simply means we can move much faster - even faster than we did before and process even greater volumes.

"In addition, people are our greatest asset so it is extremely important to the company that we have a good environment for people to work in. We want our staff to be motivated and really want to come to the office in the morning. Therefore, we have made some changes in how we arrange the workflow through the building designated by different branded colours. We have also invested heavily in IT equipment. Most of our conveyancers have at least two computer screens on their desks, this can take up most of the desk, so we've worked hard to find a solution that makes it as comfortable and spacious as possible by hanging the screens rather than resting them on the surface. Finally, one thing we were desperately short of in our old offices was meeting rooms and general communal space. We now have many new meeting rooms and a half floor devoted to a lunch/meeting communal space with a Nintendo Wii in it for entertainment, which is proving a great hit!"
